Some one, who had noticed the influence of wives in promoting the good or evil fortunes of their hus-bands, said: "A man must ask his wife's leave to be rich." We doubt not that in similar observation of the influence of mothers upon their sons would justify the remark: "A man must ask his mother's leave to be great." Years ago, a family of four—a father, a mother, and two sons, dwelt in a small house situated in the roughest locality of the rocky town of Ashford, Connecticut. The family was very poor. A few acres of stony land, a dozen sheep and one cow supported them. The sheep elothed them, and the cow gave milk and did the work of a horse in plowing and harrowing Corn bread milk and bean porridge was their fare. The father being laid aside by ill health, the burden of supporting the family rested on the mother. She did her work in the house and helped the boys do theirs on the farm.
Once, in the dead of winter, one of the boys required a new suit of clothes. There was neither money no wool on hand. The mother sheared the half-grown fleece from the sheep, and in one week the suit was on the boy. The shorn sheep was protected from the cold by a garment made of braided straw. The family lived four miles from the "meeting bouse" Yet every Sunday the mother and her two sons walked to church. One of these sons became the pastor of the church at Franklin, Conneticut, where he preached for sixty-one years. Two generations went from that church to make the world better. The other son also became a minister, and then one of the most successful of college presidents, Hundreds of young men were moulded by him.
